

Smokey the Sassy, Spunky, Sometimes Stubborn Pony

The animals who live at Green Apple Acres are one big family. They interact with each other and, as it should be, they respect each other, enjoy being with each other, and learn from each other. Sometimes things are not as they appear to be.

The animals at Green Apple Acres are all aware of how they're alike and how they're different, of what each one likes and dislikes, and of each of their unique personalities. Every animal is an individual, and as long as they all respect one another, things work out very well.
